PASTOR'S MESSAGE

Tobin: Abortion, anti-immigrant rhetoric both 'brutalize' the American heart by John L. Allen Jr. and Ines San Martin on July 6, 2017 for CRUX

ORLANDO, Florida - Cardinal Joseph Tobin of Newark, New Jersey, often is styled as among the most prominent "Pope Francis bishops" in America, and he's indeed a Francis enthusiast. Tobin praised the July 1-4 "Convocation of Catholic Leaders" in Orlando, for instance, as "the first time, at least that I'm aware of,

on a national scale, that Church leadership is discussing Pope Francis" due to its focus on Evangelii Gaudium, the pope's 2013 document on "The Joy of the Gospel." Yet if anyone suspects his backing for Francis comes at the expense of Catholic orthodoxy on matters such as the Church's pro-life teaching or its sexual morality, Tobin has some surprises in store.

Asked about his outspoken support for immigrant rights, for example, he quickly connects it to the 1973 Roe v. Wade and Doe v. Bolton decisions legalizing abortion as a further chapter in the "brutalization of the American heart," one that "affects not only the immigrant population but all of us." On his recent decision to welcome a LGBTQ pilgrimage to the Newark Cathedral, Tobin made clear it was not a prelude to challenging traditional sexual ethics. "I don't presume that every person who identifies him or herself as LGBTQ is sexually active," he said. "If they're attempting to live a chaste life, then they certainly need the support of the believing community, a chance to pray, and to know that they're welcomed within the body of Christ. "The bottom line, according to Tobin, is that "I preach what the Church preaches, and teach what the Church teaches, and believe it with great serenity." At the same time, he said, "I feel it's my job to welcome people."

Tobin spoke to Crux during the convocation in Orlando, which brought together almost 3,500 bishops, clergy, religious, and laity to ponder how to implement Evangelii Gaudium in the contemporary American context. On other matters, Tobin said: Bringing Catholics together in the convocation was a good move, in part because "people who take their faith seriously, and also want to make a lifestyle out of it, can feel like the odd people out if you listen to enough messages from other sectors of society. "There are real threats to religious freedom in America today, including "the fairly persistent attempt to reduce our faith to worship, and then privatize the rest of it. It's not acceptable, for many religious people, but particularly for Christians who believe in the importance of worship, and where worship is connected to your life."

A "climate of fear" is spreading among immigrants today, including "parents who will tell me that when they kiss their kids going to school, they're not sure they're going to be home when they come back, because they could be taken." Pope Francis, Tobin insisted, does not emphasize the centrality of the poor because of his politics or background, but because it's core to the Christian faith. Tobin said he was once listening to the radio and "almost drove off the road." He heard a fellow bishop say Francis uses that sort of rhetoric because he's a Latin American. 'Whoa, no,' Tobin recalls thinking. 'He reads the Gospel, that's why he talks that way.' He said he's still getting used to the intense media spotlight surrounding him in Newark, including a recent spread in the New York Times featuring a picture of him lifting weights. "Sometimes I console myself with the wisdom of Andy Warhol, who said 'Everybody has 15 minutes of fame in their lifetime,' so I think maybe I am at 14 minutes 35 seconds, and they'll grow tired and move on to the next new thing," he said. The following are excerpts of Crux's conversation with Tobin, which took place on July 4.

Crux: What kind of vibe are you picking up at this convocation? Tobin: Well, I think something like this is always immediately useful to the participants, because it gives you a feeling of solidarity. People who take their faith seriously, and also want to make a lifestyle out of it, can feel like the odd people out if you listen to enough messages from other sectors of society. You can feel that that isn't the case here, and that's good. I think a crucial moment is this morning, when the diocesan delegations gather together and decide what to take back with them to implement at home.

ST. JOSEPH NOON MASS

The attendance at the 12 Noon St. Joseph Mass is growing. We will continue to offer that Mass throughout the summer and we thank the Jesuit Fathers from St. Peter's Prep for helping us out as much as they can.

SUMMER IN CHURCH

The cathedral size of OLG church is far larger than what we actually need for an intimate and spirited worship. We have been encouraging you to sit close up front and fill up the center of the church.
We appreciate your cooperation. In the summer time, this is more important. We have no air-conditioning and have placed fans toward the front of the church. We also want to cut back on lights since they throw heat. By sitting closer, up front, we do not have to put on all the lights. It is also better to sit closer for the singing and responses, which often sound so faint. Let's reply with resounding,
"Amen" and responses. We have no leaders of song for Masses so we cut back on the singing.
Thank you for staying with your parish over the summer. We appreciate your regular donations since our bills do not take a summer vacation.

AC IN CHOIR ROOM

The OLG Choir Room is air-conditioned. If any one feels overcome by heat during Mass, please feel free to go and sit in that room to cool off.

FESTEJANDO LA ALEGRÍA DE SER DISCIPULOS MISIONEROS

V ENCUENTRO
REUNIRSE PARA SER DISCIPULOS MISIONEROS DE JESUS

Festear es celebrar lo que nos es importante como personas y como comunidad. Es una expresión profundamente humana que exige que estemos presentes unos a otros. Es interesante observar que el primer signo revelador o milagro en la vida de Jesús fue en una boda, un evento que normalmente involucra música, comida y bebida, baile y mucha alegría.

El Papa Francisco afirma que “la comunidad evangelizadora gozosa siempre sabe ‘festejar’. Celebra y festeja cada pequeña victoria, cada paso adelante en la evangelización. La evangelización gozosa se vuelve belleza en la liturgia en medio de la exigencia diaria de extender el bien. La Iglesia evangeliza y se evangeliza a sí misma con la belleza de la liturgia, la cual también es celebración de la actividad evangelizadora y Fuente de un renovada impulse donativo.” (Evangelii Gaudium, n.24)

Nuestros festejos religiosos tanto por medio de la liturgia como de la religiosidad popular reconocen a Jesús resucitado y los frutos de vida nueva de aquellos que le festejan. Junto con la celebración de la Eucaristía, el Bautismo, el Matrimonio y los demás sacramentos, son muchas las expresiones religiosas que nos ayudan a festejar que Dios camina con nosotros y ha hecho cosas grandes en nuestras vidas; imágenes religiosas de Jesús, María y los santos; celebraciones especiales dentro del año litúrgico como la Navidad, el Día de Todos los Santos, el Día de Todos los Difuntos, la Epifanía, la Virgen de Guadalupe, la Pascua, etc.

El Cristiano es agradecido de todo lo que Dios le da a lo festeja. Hoy en día se nos invita de manera especial a ser agradecidos por el orden creado. El festejar es el reconocer que somos necesitados de Dios y que necesitamos agradecerle a través del encuentro con otros en forma festiva, ya que Dios está ahí con nosotros, en nuestros logros y en los fracasos también. Una “Iglesia en salida” es una Iglesia que festeja que el Señor la acompaña y le ha dado muchos frutos.
